INTRODUCTION.

The tables herein contained are derived mainly from the Shinsen Nempiô (新選年表), Dômô Hitsudoku (童蒙必讀) and Honchô Nendaiki (本朝年代紀). The second of these works is considered an unerring guide in matters of pronunciation, and has been followed exactly, with the exception of not pronouncing 元 guen instead of gen, which is the usual pronunciation.

Table I, containing the names of the years of the cycle, is needed because Japanese authors often give the cyclical year of a Nengô, omitting the numeral year, as for example 康平癸卯年. By referring to this table the numerical value of 癸卯 is found to be 40. In Table II under 康 and opposite to 平 is found 戊戌 1058. The numerical value of 戊戌 is 35. From 40 take 35, remainder 5; 1058+5=1063, which is the date sought for.

In Table II, two numbers are placed opposite to each character which denotes a separate Nengô, the first being the year in which it commences, the second that in which it ends. It is a common practice with Japanese writers to say, for example, during 慶長 (Keichô), and the table gives the equivalent, namely 1596 to 1615. The characters in brackets are the Nengô of the Hokuchô, or Northern Court.

Table III contains the pronunciations of the Nengô arranged alphabetically, and is intended for the use of those who are not familiar with the radicals.

Table IV is a synopsis of the nengô, the Mikados and the Shôguns. When two pronunciations are found linked together the upper one rests on the authority of the Dômô Hitsudoku, the lower on that of the Hakubutsu-sen (博物筌), published in 1768. As a general rule, Japanese are not acquainted with the correct pronunciation either of Nengô, or of the Mikados' historical names (okurina), and, with the exception of Kokugakusha, they will be found to prefer the pronunciation of the Hakubutsu-sen to that of the Dômô Hitsudoku. The month and day of the commencement of each Nengô are also given. The 12th month of a Japanese year usually falls later than the European New Year, and thus the dates at which the Nengô begin and end are sometimes wrong by one year. To make the correction with exactness would necessitate calculating the Japanese New Year's day for the last 12 centuries, but the value of the result would scarcely compensate for the labour. The name in brackets under the historical name of a Mikado is, in cases where it ends with the word Mikoto, the native historical name, in other cases it is the personal name (imi-na). The name in brackets under that of each of the Ashikaga and Tokugawa Shôguns is the posthumous name.

Table V contains the names of the Mikados of the Hokuchô and their Nengô.

Table VI is a list of the historical names of all the Mikados in alphabetical order, exhibiting the duration of the reign of each.

Table VII is a list of the residences of the earlier Mikados, which will be useful to students of works on the native literature and the earlier historical records.

Table VIII contains the historical aliases of a few Mikados.

Table IX contains the historical and posthumous names of all the Shôguns, showing the length of time during which the title was held by each.

Table X is a list of the nine Generations (kudai) of the Hôjô Family, Regents under the 'Puppet' Shôguns of Kamakura.
